Researchers say that there are more than 40,000 different kinds of jobs in the United States. Yet in spite of this diversity, many people still haven't linked up with a job they really like. They face the option of moving from one job to another or enduring years of conflict and drudgery.

The New Testament teaches that God has made us all different; we should seek to find the vocation that is best suited for our gifts and temperaments. Yet, it also teaches that even slaves can serve with gladness if they understand how God views their work.

This eBooklet seeks to show that almost any task can be fulfilling if it is done for the right Person. It explains biblical principles that can transform even routine duties into acts of glad obedience. Here is sound advice for the person who is unfulfilled and despairs of ever finding the right vocation.
