This large format, paperbound edition features the work of James Gillray (1756-1815), the first known, major political cartoonist, who gleefully lampooned the London public figures of his time. A skilled draughtsman, Gillray turned caricature into an art as he visually skewered dignitaries such as Napoleon, Admiral Nelson, Lady Hamilton, and King George III. Draper Hill, an editorial cartoonist at the Detroit News and the author of two standard works on Gillray, has written the introduction, captions and notes to this edition.
